Michael Blumenfeld joined Conway Farrell in 1989, and until recently has been a partner at the firm. Mike co-chaired the firm's Construction Litigation and General/Complex Tort and Trial Practice Unit. Mike's background includes almost 10 years of experience as an ornamental ironworker and as a member of the International Association of Bridge Structural & Ornamental Ironworkers, Local #580. His experience as an ironworker encompassed numerous positions including a journeyman, shop steward, foreman, and site superintendent.

As Of Counsel, Mike utilizes his comprehensive background in construction and focuses his legal practice on construction and insurance law. He has extensive experience handling cases involving serious construction accidents, building defects and architectural and engineering malpractice.
